COMMITTEE TALKS OF INAUGURAL DATE

First Session Held Yesterday Afternoon in Commissioners' Office.

MR. MACFARLAND CHAIRMAN

Fourth Thursday in April Favored as the Best Date for the Occasion for Many Reasons-Action of Congress Awaited.

The first meeting of the committee appointed by the District Commissioners, in accordance with the action taken by the last inaugural committee, looking to the change of the date of the inauguration of the President of the United States, was held yesterday afternoon at the District Bullding. The meeting was called to order by Commissioner Henry B. F. Macfarland, president of the board, and the committee proceeded to organize by the election of Mr. Macfarland as chairman and James L. Norris as secretary.

There was a large representation of the local members of the committee present, among whom were Justice J. M. Harlan, Admiral George Dewey, Gen. Nelson A. Miles, Gen. H. V. Boynton, Messrs. C. J. Bell, Theodore Noyes, S. W. Woodward, Thomas W. Smith, J. W. Foster, C. C. Glover, and John Joy Edson.

Governor Hill of Maine was present, as were Col. George L. Morton, chief of staff to the Governor of North Carolina, as the representative of the Governor; Representative T. C. McRae of Arkansas, as the representative of the Governor of that State: Representative M. E. Benton, representing the Governor of Missouri.

History of the Movement.

Commissioner Macfarland, in calling the meeting to order, informally set forth the history of the inaugural committee's reselution requesting the Commissioners of the District of Columbia to appoint such a number of persons as in their judgment and discretion might be necessary, to constitute a committee of national character. to consider the question of and to take proper steps to secure the change of the date of the inauguration of the President of the United States from the 4th of March to such date as in the judgment of said committee would be more suitable for inauguration day.

This resolution set forth that there prevailed a general sentiment here and throughout the country that a change of date was desirable, not only on account of . the inclemency of the weather in March, but for other public economic reasons, Mr. Macfarland emphasized the unanimity of gentiment in regard to the movement, and the national character of it. He detailed the steps taken in the appointment of the committee, and the approval with which the movement was being met, and then read the replies of the Governors of the States and Territories to the invitations to be present at the meeting of April 7, favoring the object for which the committee is striving, and which have already been published in The Times.

Senate Has Passed Bill.

Commissioner Macfarland reported that the Senate had passed Senator Hoar's resolution providing for the last Thursday In April as the innuguration date. He then gave way as temporary chairman for the election of permanent chairman.

On motion of Mr. Bell, seconded by Governor Hill, Mr. Macfarland was elected

On motion of Mr. McRae, seconded by Mr. Noyes, Hon. James L. Norris was elected secretary of the committee. General discussion ensued, in which the ter to Guatemaia: members of the committee spoke of the desire to have the inauguration date changed, as shown by the response of the Governors and by other information. The best way of presenting the matter was Also discussed. It was agreed that the chairman should appoint an executive nittee and such other committees as might be necessary.

The question of what proposition should be presented was fully discussed.

and it was resolved that it was the sense of the committee that the date of the in-auguration day should be changed from the 4th of March to the last Thursday in April, but that no particular bill or reso-

Intion was to be advocated.

Incidentally the question of the extension of the term of Congress was considered, and it was agreed that this committee had nothing to do with the question of when Congress should adjourn. The proposition to fix the 30th day of April considered, but received no support, because it was felt that it was better to name a day of the week rather than a day of the month—a day that would come al-ways in the middle of the week, so as to avoid Sunday. The committee was unan isly in favor of the last Thursday in May Irwin commenced her first annual farewell engagement-so far as Washing ton, anyway, is concerned-last night at the National Theatre. The house was filled with people who like the sort of a show that the hefty Miss Irwin usually provides, and the star herself was in fine ettle for turning out laughs. The announcement that Miss Irwin would retire from the stage at the end of the present theatrical year and devote the rest of her happy life to living in Oriental splendor on the money she has been able to save from her theatrical trips around the country is not true. Miss Irwin at the time this announcement was made was serious-she was never more so in all her life, and perhaps so far as the general public was concerned this was the only time in her career when her humor was not appreciated.

The idea of May Irwin emulating Patti and trouping around the length and breadth of the land for a farewell, seemed to please the theatre-going people of the United States immensely, and it made but little difference that the comedienne selected her oldest, yet at the same time her best, play, "The Widow Jones," with which to say "good-bye" to her patrons and followers. The farewell idea was look-ed upon as a huge joke by everybody, and Miss Irwin was considered funnier than ever before, with the result that the the-ntres in which she appeared were entirely too small to hold the people who wanted to see her joyial self and listen to her croon coon ditties.

Another Farewell Tour.

And by the time the first few months of the farewell business were over the actress decided that after all she had betbiana to be known as the Columbus Li- ter have another au revoir tour. So all admirers of the fair, frolicsome, and frail May Irwin will hall with genuine pleasure great discoverer, it will collect statisti- the news that there is to be another fare

New Coon Songs.

There is enough plot to interest any body who cares for a typical May Irwin show; the lines may be a bit trite now, but when they were first penned they fairly sparkled, and much of the lustre remains yet; and, best of all, the piece cin a capital chi some of her best coon songs. Last night she had a couple of new selections of this sort, in addition to some of the old far-orites, and these latter came in for fully as much of the applause as did the new good as ever assisted Miss Irwin in the presentation of one of her evenings of fun. Hans Robert makes a good substi-tute for John Rice and gives a performance altogether better than one might ex pect, having in mind the past work of this capable young actor. Jacques Kruger. Roland Carter, Chris Bruno, Florence Reed-a daughter of the late Roland Reed—Mabel Florence, Helen Dunian, and Mabel Russell contribute very materially to the success of "The Widow Jones."

of entertainment provided by the Mask and Wig Club of the University of Pennsylvania, at the Lafayette Square Theatre last night, when "King Cole" was given by a lot of frolicsome young fellows away from the campus and classroom for the Easter holiday,

The audience, which was one of the largest and most brilliant of the season, quickly decided, after the curtain was ifted for the first time, that it liked "King Cole," and that the Wiggers were a very clever lot of young men on the stage, no matter what reputation they might enjoy with the faculty. The spring season in Philadelphia would not be considered complete without a performance by the Mask and Wig organization, and it is said that of all the productions of recent years "King Cole" is the most pretentious and meritorious There is a plot that bobs up every once in a while, but it encounters one of the jokes of the pieces-and some of these are very much Philadelphia-and modestly retires. This plot has to do with an audactous newspaper reporter who pushes himself into the good graces of the re-gent upon promising to procure a son-inlaw for the king's only daughter. The first act is laid in the Cole regions and the second transpires near Poughkeepsie on the evening before an intercollegiate boat race. Both scenes are well pictured and the stage management is one best things in connection with the

During the evening any number of spefaltica are introduced. Some are ex clever. The lyrics that have been fitted to a dezen or so of the most popu songs of the late musical conare very good and are well rendered. Bortle, Sylvester J. Dechan, and Craig Mr. Deehan is pretty much the entire Mask and Wig Club in "King Cole." He gives a capital portrayal of a cheeky individual, programmed B. L. Z. Bubb, and during the moments when he is on the stage there is something doing in the way of laughs all the time. There is nothing of the amateur about his performance and very few professional entertainers could have given such a good performance.

W. O. Miller, R. C. Bortle and Albert Morton are a trio of unusual American tourists. Mr. Mi'ler shows a tendency to break forth into song every once in a while, but he does his vocal duties so satisfactorily that the audience really evidences a good deal of interest whenever he endeavors to uphold his reputation as the Chauncey Olcott of the U. of P. King Cole is played by Arthur Healy. who owns a brogue that never passed the spectors at Ellis Island without a good deal of trouble, but barring this Looley patois, Mr. Healy gets on very vell, thank you. Warren F. Martin as Pandora, the daughter of Cole, Rex, is just about the cutest thing imaginable and exhibits a smile and a coquettishness throughout the pair of acts that add much to the interpretation. Another young Wigger Lemuel H. Davis, plays Miss Ann Thorpe a wealthy spinsier, with much ability.

There is a good-sized chorus in "King Cole," It sings amazingly well and capers about the stage with a great deal of abandon and a swirling of skirts that would make the real comic opera chorus take to the daisy-detted dell in eavy.

The Mask and Wie Club has not stinted The Mask and Wig Club has not stinted the management in the matter of ex-penses. Everything is built as elaborately as if the material was to be used throughout a theatrical year, and no professional performance could display a better as-sortment of costumes and scenery. "King Cole" gave last night's cudience at the Lafavette three hours of genuine enjoyment; that it was highly appreciated was manifested by the generous amount of applause that rewarded the young men.

"Quo Vadis," as it was first shown to Washington theatregoers more than a year ago, returned to the Columbia Theatre last night, and despite the fact that the local public has seen another version of the play this senson, the audience was of good size. The present version is that made by Stanislaus Stange, and is a well constructed, plausible stage production of the familiar story of Sienkiewicz.

The separate characters and historical incidents involved in the story are so well known to the public that their representation on the stage is a matter of keen interest. The adaptation of the play made by Stange is the better of the two which have been given to local theatregoers. It eliminates all of the unwholesome bits of the story and presents a wonderfully realistic contrast of character, showing the beautiful faith of the early Christians and their absolute adherence to its teach-ings, despite the terrible persecutions to which they were subjected. In direct contradistinction the wickedness and loathsome depravity of Nero's court are presented in a glaring light. In point of scenic environment, costumes, and mechanical display the production is practically the same as that originally shown here, the burning of Rome being especially effective and picturesque.

The interpreting company is entirely new. Individual successes are attained by Thomas M. Hunter as Nero and Adolph but the limit allowed under the fire regutations, including those of Edna May, Fay Templeton, and Pauline Hall, and in lations. The preduction, which includes use to repeated encores adds one of girls of ordinary size, is a novelty. It is Jess Dandy that in some respects is the best work she does, although her Italian recitation, entitled "Rosy," gives another phase of her versatility. The nonsensical hit of the performance is made by Hickey & Nelson. The acrebatic antics of the male member called forth howls of laughter, and the apparently unconscious manner in which he is abetted by his associate wins several encores for an act based upon really no material beyond the actual eleverness of the performers.

The Vaudeville Craze' offered by George Felix and Lydia Barry still does good service as a laugh provoker. Miss Barry is heard to advantage in a couple of songs well suited to her strong con-tralto voice. Hill and Silvainy give sen-sational and evidently difficult work on various cycles, ending with a flight down a number of steps, with one of the team balanced on the head of the other. The Troubadour Four unfortunately are not content with adding grotesque make-ups to their songs and imitations, but force some comedy on the audience which is altogether painful and unnecessary. James J. Corbett, the top-liner of the week, was heartily received by both audiences yesterday, and held the interest of the gatherings. He was given numerous encores for the easy style of his recital of stories relating more or less to former career.
